

When caring for a dog with osteoarthritis (OA) pain, owners think about more than cost¹

Additional considerations include the burden of care, like:

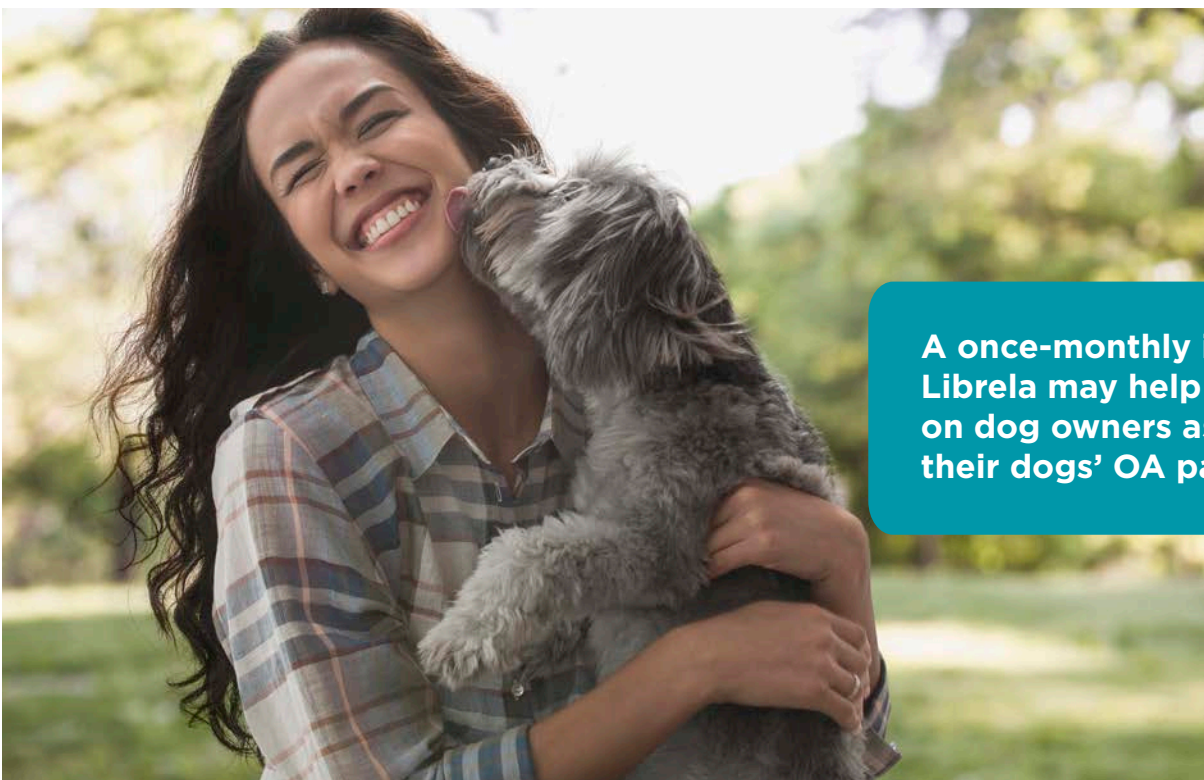

The physical demands of care, such as administering medications or managing the mobility limitations of their dog

The emotional impact of treatment successes or failures

The time needed to care for the medical needs of a dog in pain

The overall impact of care over time and long-term effects

A once-monthly injection of Librela may help ease the burden on dog owners as they manage their dogs' OA pain.
